You definitely have a flair for new business and the world of Telecoms excites you. Your experience of the Mobile Telecoms world has provided current and historic success and your customers rely on you to understand what makes their business tick.

There's no way your prospect would buy from someone else, losing to a competitor just isn't an option! You know your market, can facilitate a presentation like no other and have a natural closing ability. Being passionate about the business you work for enhances your success; a customer can always tell if your love of the company and belief in its products are sincere. For those reasons, of course they'll buy from you.

Your communication and negotiation skills are first class and you credit these in aiding your success. This success has left you wanting more; a greater earning potential, the opportunity to firstly win and then continue to service your customers, to work with industry-recognised systems.....and you absolutely have to be surrounded by a great team!

So what about our history? Well, ADSI have 16 years of industry experience and we partner with some amazing companies. We're forward thinking, fast paced and keen to grow our team with experienced Telecoms sales professionals.

You have needs too; salary is important but earning potential is critical – why else would you be in sales. To be on top form, you need time to recharge your batteries – an attractive holiday package is a must. It's important that the business you work for is stable yet flourishing, not only do you want them to benefit from your experience, you also have a desire to develop and learn.

So, if the above sounds like you and you are keen to bring your Telecoms experience to an organisation that's both supportive and rewarding, don't delay in applying.
